1915 Prize List

The Prize List for the Thirteenth Annual Didsbury Fair has been completed at this office and those wishing to obtain a copy should apply to Mr. Parker R. Reed.

This year's list contains many new features which have been added by the Directorate. Nearly all the new additions are for the purpose of encouraging the younger people to take an interest in the Fair and the splendid prizes given in these new classes should greatly help along this line.

Class 8 is the first new item in the list. This class is especially made for boys not over sixteen years of age and prizes are given for stock, grain, etc., owned by the exhibitor.

Another new class is that for girls sixteen and under. Besides sewing, prizes are given for baking of all kinds. This class should be well filled.

No entry fee will be charged for either of the above classes but entry must be made.

Another new departure is the Classes for School Work. Only schools in Mr. Aylesworth's inspectorate are eligible for entry. There are two divisions in this section, one for Graded Schools and one for Rural Schools. Beautiful shields, suitably engraved, will be given as prizes. There is no entry fee for these classes.

Successful Year For Western Mutual

The first year's business of the Western Mutual Fire Insurance Company, which closed on May 15th, is a cause for congratulation alike to the Directorate of the Company as well as the farmer whose Company it is.

It is with great pleasure that the Directors announce that they have now in force on the books of the Company $953,558.00 of insurance, and since the end of the first year's business several thousand more have been added.

Mr. Parker R. Reed, the energetic Sec. Manager of the Company, states that the Company has been extremely successful in placing good agents all over the Province and that the outlook for the new business year is decidedly good.

A young Company that can write up nearly $1,000,000 of insurance in the first year of its existence is surely on the high road to success.

First Drill of Local 15th Light Horse

The first drill of the squad of the 15th Light Horse raised in Didsbury was held on Saturday afternoon last, about 15 men turning out for drill.

Owing to the wet weather the outside work had to be abandoned and the drill was conducted in the school basement, Lieut. Morris, of Carstairs, being the instructor.

There is still room for more men in the squad and any young man in the town or district who would like to receive a little military training should either send in their names or call on J. E. Stauffer, M.L.A. By joining this organization you only serve for home defence, you are not sent out of the country unless you volunteer to join some of the contingents. Every young man should make an effort to learn a little of this work, it not only sets you up physically but it will help if ever your country needs you.

Results Rumball & Hyndman's Guess- ing Contest

The Guessing Contest conducted by Rumball & Hyndman, hardware merchants, since February last came to a close on Monday, and the final ceremony was conducted on Monday evening when Mayor Osmogd and Mr. Goodhand, of Dr. Ross, dental department, broke the seal of the jar containing the money, counted it and also went over the guesses to find the winner.

The jar was found to contain the sum of $24.20, made up of $8 in bills, $2.75 in shin plasters, $1.50 in half dollars, $8 in quarters, $1.10 in dimes $2.10 in five cent pieces and 75c in coppers; total $24.20.

The winner of the prize, who has the choice of a fine range or complete new bedstead and furnishings, was with a guess of exactly the right amount, $24.20.

There were 1,001 guesses, the highest being $845.00 and the lowest $4. Those who came closest to Mr. Shantz were as follows: G. R. Reith, $24.25; S. Graham $24.31; Geo. Alden $24.31; J. M. ## Treat Every Child's Cold Externally Rub on "Nerviline"—A Safe Cure

A Miracle of Healing Power in Every Bottle

Little children can't be expected to romp, day in and day out, without sometime coming to grief. Some of their games and rough and tumble, cause undue fatigue, and not infrequently the kiddies are bruised, have strains, swellings and aches just like their elders.

When children come in tired and sore, see they are well rubbed with Nerviline. It does wonders in breaking up a cold—has an amazing effect on any sort of muscular pain.

The wise mother always keeps trusty old Nerviline on hand. It has a wonderful list of uses, and a bottle handy on the bedroom shelf often saves calling in the doctor.

Young and old alike can safely use Nerviline—there's no harm in it—just a heap of curative power when you rub it on.

Whenever there is a pain or sickness, Nerviline should be close by. It is a true specific for rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica or neuralgia.

As for carache, toothache, sore back, sprains or strains, nothing else will cure so fast as good old Nerviline. In use about fifty years—sold by dealers everywhere. The large 50c family size bottle is the most economical; trial size 25c, all dealers, or the Catarhazone Co., Kingston, Canada.

A Cowardly Fowl

Mrs. Jones bought a chicken at the family butcher shop, and after embellishing it with bread crumbs, celery, cranberry sauce and other glad things she proudly set it before the head of the family.

"What is the matter, John?" asked the young wife, with an anxious look as hubby laboriously carved the bird and began to apply it to his appetite. "Isn't the chicken all right?"

"Why, yes; I guess he is all right, dear," was the hesitating response of father. "But I fear he was a very great coward."

"A great coward?" returned the perplexed wife. "What do you mean?"

"Don't they say, Mary," smilingly rejoined the old man, "that the bravest are always the tenderest?"

It all Came From Strain and Cold

BUT G. K. MacDONALD FOUND
RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Nova Scotia Man After Fifteen Years
Suffering Found a Cure Through Reading an Advertisement

Harrigan Cove, Halifax Co., N.S. (Special)—After suffering for fifteen years from lame back and kidney trouble Mr. George K. MacDonald, a well known resident of this place, is telling his neighbors of the great benefits he has received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started from a strain and a cold," Mr. MacDonald states. "I was troubled with stiffness of the joints and cramps in the muscles. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing, my limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins. My back ached and I suffered from rheumatism, when reading an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am only too pleased to say that the treatment was successful. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great deal of good."

Mr. MacDonald's symptoms show that he was troubled with Kidney disease. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Anything to Oblige

"I see blondes will be the style this year," remarked the idle rich man. "Is that so?" responded his brunette wife, with a well-bred yawn. "In that case, do you wish me to be one, or would you prefer a divorce?"

War Costing Two Millions an Hour

The cost of the war, estimated in the second month of the war at $32,000,000 a day, has now risen, according to official estimates, to $50,000,000 a day. The human suffering cannot be estimated. It will affect all the nations for generations to come. It is only on the material side that losses can be even approximately stated, and these are staggering.

Two countrymen were among the recruits mustered on the drill-ground, and one of them, remarkably raw, asked his companion what to do when he got the order "Halt."

"Well," was the reply, "when he says 'Halt,' yez bring the fut that's on the ground to the soles of the fut that's in the air, and thin remain quite motionless!"

Ways That Are Dark?

A woman interested in charity work was accustomed each day to pass by the door of a Chinese laundry wherein were employed two Chinese. Each time she passed the charity worker would stop for an instant and speak to the boss.

"Hello, John," she would call out, to which salutation the Celestial would reply, "Hello, lady."

One day she saw only one Chinaman where there had been two, and she asked: "Where is the other John?"

"Him in hospital," said the laundry man.

"Clisten gentleman stluck him in the head with a blick—Argonaut."

Asthma Brings Misery, but Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy will replace the misery with welcome relief. Inhaled as smoke or vapor it reaches the very inmost recesses of the bronchial passages and soothes them. Restriction passes and easy breathing returns. If you knew as well how this remedy would help you as do thousands of grateful users, there would be a package in your home tonight. Try it.

Your Pride in Your Town

Your pride in your town is about the best kind of pride you can have. It is an unselfish pride. It is pride in your neighbors and what they have done. For they made the town—not only paid for the pavements and built the schoolhouses but planted the trees and showed their faith in the place by making it their home.

But pride in your home town requires something besides pride. You ought to help it to grow and to improve. You ought to do your share by aiding in movements for the town's good and by voting good men into office who will best look after its interests.

Then, and not until then, will a citizen have a real right to speak of his town with pride. It will be a town in the making of which he had a part. Not only will he be proud of the town but the town also will be proud of him.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—I had my leg badly hurt, the pain was very severe and a large swelling came above the knee. I expected it would be serious—I rubbed it with MINARD'S LINIMENT, which stopped the pain and reduced the swelling very quickly. I cannot speak too highly of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

The Grand Trunk Pacific authorities report that the various provincial governments in Western Canada are co-operating in a very enthusiastic manner with the federal government's "Patriotism and Production" campaign.

The government of the province of Alberta is giving practical assistance to the better farming movement by enlarging the scope of agricultural instruction.

Finances of Switzerland

2,000 Miles of State Owned Railways
in Operation

The general debt of Switzerland is approximately $58,946,100. The population (1912) is 3,831,220 or a per capita general debt of about $15.

Besides the above debt, the government owns about 2,000 miles of railroad, approximately two-thirds of the total mileage in Switzerland, on which there is a total debt incurred or assumed by the government of about $300,004,080. This railway debt is not a burden to the government as it represents the acquirement of valuable properties which in 1913 earned net $13,570,000, a sum considerably in excess of the annual requirements for interest and sinking funds. The railroads are kept in first class condition and the methods of accounting are believed to be highly conservative.

When War Boosted Wheat

In the struggle with Napoleon, when the British Navy commanded the sea, the price of wheat for the year 1801 averaged 119s., and actually reached 126s. 6d. in 1812. The British people are paying less than half as much today, though two of the main sources of supply—Australia and Russia—have failed. In every possible respect, they are better off than the German people, who are now menaced with a real shortage of bread.—London Daily Mail.

Queen Elizabeth, whose name is borne by the super-Dreadnought which has wrought so much havoc in the Dardanelles, had two warships christened after her during her lifetime. There was an Elizabeth in the English fleet at the time of the Armada, and after the defeat of the Spaniards a ship bearing the fantastic title of Elizabeth Jones was launched. It is recorded that "the shippe called the Elizabeth Jones was so named by Her Grace in remembrance of her own deliverance from the fury of her enemies, from which in one respect she was no less miraculously preserved than was the prophet Jonah from the belly of the whale."

When in the Woods

- 1—Be sure your match is out before you throw it away.
- 2—Knock out your pipe ashes or throw your cigar or cigarette stump where there is nothing to catch fire.
- 3—Don't build a camp fire any larger than is absolutely necessary. Never leave it, even for a short time, without putting it out with water or earth.
- 4—Don't build a camp fire against a tree or log. Build a small one where you can scrape away the needles, leaves or grass from all sides of it.
- 5—Don't build bonfires. The wind may rise at any time and start a fire which you cannot control.
- 6—If you discover a fire, put it out if possible; if you can't, inform the nearest forest ranger or fire warden as quickly as you possibly can.

A safe and sure medicine for a child troubled with worms is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

The Horse in the War

The numbers of horses employed in war on the modern scale are immensely larger than in earlier wars, and the actual figures of loss from all causes, did we know them, would certainly appal any humane mind. Injuries from shot and shell are probably but a small proportion of the total. The wastage due to accident, exhaustion and the many forms of equine sickness upon both sides in this war is the thing that goes to the heart of the animal lover who knows what the conditions are.—London Daily Telegraph.

Birds fly before armies and now it has been found that sea-gulls have a peculiar fondness (or perhaps antipathy) for the submarine. When a submarine leaves its wake on the surface of the water, great flocks of gulls collect and follow after. Perhaps the submarine confuses them, and they may still be laboring under the delusion that it is a whale. The whale is always followed by a flock of gulls, and even when he dives the sharp-eyed birds are able to locate his position.

Heavy Tourist Travel

C.P.R. Prepares to Handle Immense
Numbers Who Will Visit Canadian Rockies

The Canadian Pacific Railway has been for some time making extensive preparations for the handling of the immense crowds which it is expected will take advantage of the extremely low rates to the Canadian Rockies, North Pacific coast points, and the Panama Pacific International Exhibition at San Francisco and the Panama California Exhibition at San Diego. Both of these exhibitions are now running full swing and will be the centre of attraction for many thousands of Americans and Canadians this coming summer. It is expected that the Canadian Rockies will have the biggest season in their history.

In order to accommodate the large numbers who will be making trips, it was decided to open Banff Springs Hotel May 1st this year, instead of May 15th as formerly.

Miller's Worm Powders are sweet and palatable to children, who show no hesitancy in taking them. They will certainly bring all worm troubles to an end. They are a strengthening and stimulating medicine, correcting the disorders of digestion that the worms cause and imparting a healthy tone to the system most beneficial to development.

To Sell Fish to Newfoundland

Although bringing fish to Newfoundland would seem like carrying coals to Newcastle, there is a prospect that it will be attempted on a considerable scale this year. The proposition comes from Iceland. Because of the war, the markets of Northern Europe are closed to the fishermen of that island, and they are forced to seek a new outlet. Since the fishing operations off the Newfoundland coast will be largely curtailed this season, as a result of the large number of Newfoundlanders who have joined the British army and navy, the Icelanders think they will be able to dispose of a large part of their product there. As it is proposed to purchase foodstuffs and other goods for return cargoes to Iceland, the idea is looked upon with favor in Newfoundland.

An Example For Montreal

Last year the municipal authorities of Regina, Sask., aided the unemployed by placing at their disposal a large number of vacant lots uncultivated by the proprietors. All such lots situated within the limits of the city were "catalogued," and, with the permission of the owners, were then converted into kitchen gardens by people who were out of work. They thus found at the same time labor which produced them means of living. Why cannot Montreal do that which has been attempted, with success at Regina?—Montreal La Presse.

Tetecology

"Is it true that the appendix is absolutely useless?" asked the medical student.

"Useless?" thundered the professor, "why, sir, it's a veritable gold mine for surgeons."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lover (passionately)—Sir, I love the very ground your daughter walks on.

Father (grimly)—No doubt you do—it's worth $200 a front foot.

He—How do you like my moustache?

She—Not so very well at first sight.

He—Perhaps it will grow on you.

She—Oh, Lester, you are always thinking of the most absurd things!—Yale Record.

Churchill's Work

Mr. Churchill has demonstrated that he knew, previous to this war, what the empire wanted in the way of naval preparation. He prepared the scene for Germany's repudiation on the water. He made the British superiority so manifest that Germany has admitted it with all the humiliation a nation may exhibit. The failure of the German navy to come out and give battle to the enemy cannot be sound strategy, as it is, without being indefensibly bad warfare.—Montreal Mail.

Spring Blood Is Watery Blood

How to Get New Health and
New Strength at This Season

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions; while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood. In proof of this Mrs. D. E. Hughes, Hazenmore, Sask., says: "About a year ago I was badly run down, my nerves were all unstrung, and I could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. As I was a long ways from a doctor I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in the course of a few weeks I felt like a new person. As an all round restorative I can heartily recommend this medicine."

If you are ailing this spring you cannot afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The female suffrage orator stood upon her platform and looked over the sea of faces. "Where would man be today were it not for woman?" she inquired. She paused a moment. "Again I repeat," she said, "where would man be today were it not for woman?"

"In the Garden of Eden," answered a male voice from the rear.

Reducing Her Worry

Mr. Ma. ley—Well, my dear, I've had my life insured for $5,000.

Mrs. Manley—How very sensible of you! Now I shan't have to keep telling you to be so careful every place you go.—Pathfinder.

Gained 30 Lbs. in Few Weeks Never Felt So Well

Was Pale, Weak and Thin, and Had Nervous Headaches
Before Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is truly wonderful what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does for women who are weak, weary and run down in health. New, rich blood is what is needed in nearly all such cases, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new blood it brings cure—not mere relief, but actual cure—in the great majority of such ailments.

With an abundance of rich, red blood coursing through the veins the nerves are strengthened and vigor and vitality are carried to every organ of the human body.

With the nerves properly nourished headaches and neuralgic pains disappear, appetite improves, digestion is good, you sleep and rest well, and gain in strength and weight.

MRS. H. LAICH.

Mrs. H. Laich, Cannington Manor, Sask., writes:—"You will remember me writing you last spring. Well, I gave up my doctor and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment cured me rapidly and I was soon myself again. I was pale, thin and weak, suffered from stomach troubles and liver complaint, and frequently had sick, nervous headaches. I was surprised to find that in a few weeks' time I had gained 30 pounds in weight. I never felt so strong and well in all my life. Headaches never bother me any more, and I am grateful for the cure. If people would only give this medicine a fair trial they would certainly be cured."

Everywhere people are talking about this great food cure, which cures in Nature's way, by supplying the ingredients to form new blood, and so overcome weakness and disease by an abundance of vitality. ## A Falling Market

When Judge Landis of Chicago tried to sell the eighty-nine licenses of the Tosetti Brewing company, bankrupt, he found that such commodities were a drug on the market. One purchaser offered $1,200 but this, the only offer made, was refused. A year ago licenses brought $2,500 to 2,800. The reason for this decrease in value is said to be fear of successful local prohibition legislation. The entire liquor forces seem to be looking forward with just reason to future stringent restrictions to their business. Judge Landis closed all the saloons owned by this brewing company from Saturday night at midnight until 5 o'clock Monday morning, observing and giving force to the Sunday closing law of Illinois.

Turned It Down

The Student Council of Northwestern University refused to allow the men students to participate in a "popularity contest" giving a motorcycle to the most popular student. The prize was offered by a tobacco firm and the votes were to be cast with cigarette coupons. In connection with the contest a sum of money was promised to the University Athletic Association, the amount to be determined by the number of votes cast, showing how many packages of cigarettes had been bought and smoked. This offer was also refused.

The "Lucky Man"

"Recognized as the Lucky Man of Today" is the legend of the picture on a very neat bill which has been issued announcing the Calgary Industrial exhibition for June 30 to July 7. The "Lucky Man" is the farmer who is shown in this instance on top of a load of hay. Farmers, stockmen, housewives, boys and girls are always interested in Calgary's splendid fair because of the generous premiums offered for exhibits, but for those who are looking for something more spectacular there is a very interesting programme. Over six thousand soldiers from all parts of the province who are to be in camp there will participate in the grand military programme. The military tattoo will comprise seven regimental bands, and with the usual attractions and races the fair this year promises to be more interesting than ever it was. Many from this section are arranging to take advantage of the cheap rates and see the big Calgary exhibition.

Best in Twenty Years

Old timers and near old timers proclaim this spring the best in twenty years. Even the oldest inhabitant of this district is hard put to it to remember just such a fine beginning for bumper crops.

Pasture is in splendid shape and cattle should come off in excellent condition this summer. All grain is up in better condition than for some years and if no untoward incident happens before harvest this district should reap the biggest harvest, with the increased acreage, it has ever had. Everything grown on the land is almost a month earlier this year than ever before.

Out West Notes

The weather has been very disagreeable for the past few days, but we are all looking for a change in a few days.

Mr. Pete Derksen tells us that he is leaving for the eastern country, and is taking that roadster with him.

The crows are getting very plentiful around Mr. Vipond's these days. Caw! Caw!

If you should see anything that looks like a cyclone in the near future, don't be frightened. Mr. Kyle Oliver and family expect to go to Montana soon in his fine Ford car.

Miss McCarthy was a visitor at Calgary last week.

Miss Nora Smith has left for Calgary where she intends spending the summer.

Baseless Charge Nailed

After all, it was the House of Morgan, and not certain ministers of the Rutherford government, which benefitted by the $740,000 premium on the bond issue of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railroads. The truth came out in a statement by Premier Sifton during the closing hours of the legislature in Edmonton last week. The political ghost of the Waterways was brought up by Leader Michener in the opposition, who made some reference to the missing premium and in reply the premier said:

"I think that in regard to this matter this is a good time that I should state that one of the English partners of the house of Morgan informed me that so far as their profit on these bonds was concerned, it went entirely to themselves...."

Mr. Smith is the London partner, and he looks after matters there. He told me that when they bought these bonds they did not anticipate being able to sell them for anything like 110, but the bonds were not delivered to them until some months afterwards. There had been a considerable change in the market and they had been able to get it."

Hon. C. W. Cross, the attorney-general, and Former Premier Rutherford, are the men most concerned by this clearance. At the time of the bond sale it was openly charged that these two ministers were the beneficiaries, and the frank statement of the premier clears the atmosphere and sends to oblivion the baseless charges against these gentlemen. —The Western Standard.

FIRE PROTECTION FOR OLD ST. PAULS

Although St. Paul's Cathedral was burned to the ground twice—in 1086 and 1666—it was only lately that it was discovered that the existing system of fire fighting apparatus was altogether inadequate, and work was begun on an extensive scheme of fire protection.

An experiment showed that two motor engines of the London Fire Brigade, working in unison, could throw a jet of water over the main dome on a clear, still day, but with so little force as to be practically useless.

The new protective system is on a large scale, consisting of twenty-six new hydrants and over 2,000 feet of hose, besides a special installation of fire alarms. In each corner of the cathedral four-inch cast iron pipes, protected from frost by cowhair felt, and canvas are carried to the sixty feet or cornice level. Similar pipes also extend into the crypt, the organ loft, and the stone gallery. The system is continued by smaller pipes to the top of the dome.

The novelty of the arrangement is a dry main laid from the outer wall of the cathedral to the height of sixty feet. No water will be kept in it and in case of fire the London Fire Brigade will couple its engines to the outer ends, and at the same time link short lines of hose to the outlets nearest to the scene of fire. It is expected that greater efficiency and speed will be gained by not having to lay long lines of hose direct from the engine.

POLICE USED PEPPER

It Enabled Them to Capture Man With Iron Bar

Cayenne pepper, burned on cotton wool, was used by the Leeds police in capturing a man who took refuge in his bedroom. The story was told when Thomas Griffin was charged with assaulting Police Constable Wainwright. The constable came across the prisoner lying drunk on the footpath and told him to go home. Griffin obeyed, but later he came out of his house and threw a mug at the policeman.

Inspector Ellis, on going to arrest him, found him at the top of the stairs with a heavy ash stick in one hand and an iron bar in the other. He threatened murder, and for two hours kept the police at bay. It was then that the police smoked him out by burning cayenne pepper on cotton wool. Fifty-nine previous convictions were recorded against him, and he was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Roman Discoveries

Excavations at the Roman city of Uriconium, Shropshire, are revealing some interesting discoveries. In the area within the city walls the frontage of houses and a fine peristyle, all facing Watling street, have been unearthed, together with four wells, with cisterns intact, and a 50 x 50 furnace. Eighty gold coins from the time of the Emperor Vespasian to Gratian, a large white earthenware jar, a unique Roman sword scabbard, pottery, and many other interesting finds have already been discovered.

The Mystery of the Ravenspurs

By Fred M. White

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited
London, Melbourne and Toronto

"Perfectly," Geoffrey replied. "An enemy so marvellously clever must not be treated lightly. Do you propose to make the capture tonight?"

Ralph Ravenspur laughed. It was not a pleasant laugh and was mirthless. His scarred face was full of scornful amusement.

"Not tonight or tomorrow night, or for many nights," he said. "We have all the serpent wisdom of the Old World against us, the occult knowledge of the East allied to the slippery cunning that Western education gives. There will be many dangers before we have finished, and the worst of these dangers will fall upon you."

Ralph brought his hand down with a sudden clap on his nephew's shoulder. Tchigorsky regarded him long and earnestly as if he would read his very soul.

"You will do," he said curtly. "I am satisfied you will do and I never made a mistake in my estimate of a man yet. Ravenspur, are you ready?"

"Ay, ay, I have been ready this long time."

The lamp was extinguished and light slippers were donned, and with no more provision than a box of wax matches they left the room. Instructed by Ralph Ravenspur, they fell behind him, each holding by the coat-tail of the other. Down the corridor they went, down the stairs, along stone-flagged passages until they reached the vast series of cellars and vaults over which the castle was built.

There were many of these with twists and turns and low passages; the place was large enough to conceal a big force of troops. And yet, though it was pitchy dark and intricate as a labyrinth, the blind man made no error; he did not hesitate for a moment.

Well as Geoffrey imagined that he knew the castle, he was fain to confess his utter ignorance alongside the knowledge displayed by the blind guide.

Ralph pulled up suddenly and began to speak.

"I brought you here tonight, Geoffrey," he said, "so that you might have the first lesson in the task that lies before you. Listen! Can you hear anything?"

"I hear the roar of the sea, the waves grating on the shingle."

"Yes, because we are on a level with the sea. There are deeper vaults yet, which you will see presently, and they are below the level of the sea. Our ancestors used to place their prisoners there, and by removing a kind of sluice, allowed the tide to come in and drown them. You see, those walls are damp."

They were, indeed. As a wax vesta flared up, the dripping stones and the long white fungi gave the place a weird appearance. Then Ralph dropped suddenly, extinguished his match, and drew his companions behind a row of cupboard like timbers.

"Somebody is coming," he whispered.

The others could hear nothing. But the blind man's powers of hearing were abnormal. It seemed a long time before the sound of footsteps could be heard. Then a figure in white, a fair figure with long shining hair hanging down her back and carrying a taper, crept down the steps.

An exclamation trembled on Geoffrey's lips—an exclamation of alarm, of admiration, of the utmost astonishment. But Ralph laid a hand on his mouth. The figure passed into the vault beyond.

"It was Marion!" said Geoffrey in a thrilling whisper. "And yet it did not look like Marion. She seemed so dreamy; so far off."

"She was walking in her sleep," Ralph said quietly.

"But the danger of it, the danger!"

"My dear boy, there is no danger at all. Blind as I am, I found out this peculiarity of Marion's directly I returned. Danger to her! I would not have a hair of her head injured, to save Ravenspur from destruction. Geoffrey, it is through Marion and Marion alone, that we are going to solve the mystery."

"Ah," Tchigorsky muttered, "that is so."

Ralph raised his hand to impose silence. The soft turning footfalls were clear to the ears. Then, rigid, unbending, with dilated eyes, Marion passed, the flash of the lantern behind her.

"Come," said Ralph, "let us return. A good night's work, Tchigorsky."

"Ah," Tchigorsky murmured; "a good night's work, indeed."

CHAPTER XIII. Reeling Off the Thread

It was fortunate for all parties that Geoffrey was possessed of strong nerves, or he would have been certain to betray himself and them.

Since he had left school at the time when the unseen terror first began to oppress Ravenspur, he had known nothing of the world; he had learnt nothing beyond the power to suffer silently and the power of love.

To confide in him was, perhaps, a daring thing on the part of Ralph Ravenspur. But, then, Ralph knew his world only too deeply and too well, and he rarely made a mistake in a man. All the same, he followed as closely as possible the meeting between Marion and Geoffrey the following morning.

Marion came down a little pale, a little quieter and more subdued than usual. Geoffrey rallied her in the spirit of mingled amusement and affection that he always assumed to Marion. His voice was natural and unaffected. Ralph was grimly satisfied. He knew now that his ally had brains as well as courage.

"I believe you have been sitting up writing poetry," Geoffrey laughed.

"Indeed, I had a very long night's rest," Marion responded. "And I can't imagine why I look so pale and washed out this morning!"

"Bad dreams and an evil conscience," Vera suggested demurely.

Marion laughed. Usually at meal times the young people had the conversation entirely to themselves. Sometimes the elders joined in; sometimes they listened and smiled at the empty badinage; usually they were wrapped in their gloomy thoughts. Ralph's face had the expression of a stone idol, yet he followed every word that was said with intense and vivid interest.

"Bad dreams, indeed," Marion admitted. "They were with me all night. It seemed to me that I was wandering about all night looking for something. And I had nothing on but my night-dress. In India as a child I used to walk in my sleep. I hope I am not going to that again."

Marion laughed and passed on to another subject. Curiously enough, she seemed to shrink from speaking of her life in India. Of her dead parents she would discourse freely; of her own early life she said nothing. It had always seemed to Geoffrey that Marion's childhood had been unhappy. There was an air of gentle melancholy when her features were in repose, an air far older than her years.

Meanwhile Ralph had been following all this keenly. He appeared to be interested in his breakfast. The streaming sunshine filtered through the great stained glass windows till upon his scarred face; his head was bent down upon his plate.

But the man's mind was at work. He had his opportunity to speak to Geoffrey presently.

"You will do," he said approvingly. "Keep up that easy, cheerful manner of yours. Whatever happens, try to ignore it; try to keep up that irresponsible boyish manner. You will find it invaluable in disarming suspicion later, when one false move may dash all our delicate plans to the ground."

"I will do anything you require of me, uncle."

"That is right; that is the spirit in which to approach the problem. And remember, that what may appear to you to be the most trivial detail may prove to be of the utmost importance to our case. For instance, I am going to ask you to do something now that may produce big results. I want you to get your grandfather's permission to use the top room over the tower."

"But what can I want it for? It is useless to me."

"At present, yes; but later it will be useful. You require it for an observatory. You are going to try to repair the big telescope. You are enthusiastic on the subject, you are hot-foot to get to work at once. There is nothing but lumber there."

"Boxes belong to Marion, Uncle. Cases that have remained unpacked ever since she came over from India."

Ralph smiled in his most inscrutable manner.

"Mere trifles," he croaked. "But there, I am one of the men who deny there are such things as trifles. You may lose a pin out of your watch, a trifle hardly visible to the eye a yard off. And yet your costly watch, with its marvellous mechanism, is useless without that 'trifle.' Now go."

An hour later and Geoffrey was busy in the corridor with the big telescope that nobody had troubled about at Ravenspur for many years. Geoffrey, in his shirt sleeves, was polishing up the brasses. Vera was with her mother somewhere.

There had been a trouble in getting permission from Rupert Ravenspur. It was doubtful if he even heard Geoffrey's request. Everything the young people asked for they got, as a rule. Why not, when a day might cut off their lives and their little pleasures for all time? The head of the family was fast becoming a fatalist. So far as he was concerned, there was no hope that the terror would ever lift. He had escaped one; the next time the foe would not fall. But there would be rest in the grave.

Marion found Geoffrey in the corridor. The yellow and purple lights from the leaded windows filled the place with a soft, warm glow. Marion's dark hair was shot with purple; her white dress, as she lounged in a window seat, was turned to gold. She formed a wonderfully fair and attractive picture, if Geoffrey had only heeded it. But, then, Geoffrey had no eyes for any one but Vera.

"What are you going to do?" Marion asked. "Read your fortune in the stars? Get inspiration from the heavenly bodies to combat the power of darkness?"

"I'm going to have a shot at astronomy again," Geoffrey replied, in his boyish and most enthusiastic manner. "I was considered a bit of swell at it at school. And when I saw this jolly old telescope lying neglected here, I made up my mind to polish my knowledge. I'm going to set it up in the tower turret."

"But it is packed full of boxes—my boxes."

"Well, there is plenty of room for those boxes elsewhere—in fact, we've got space enough to give every box a room to itself. There is an empty bedroom just below. Presently I'm going to shunt all your lumber in there."

Marion nodded approvingly. Of course if Geoffrey said a thing it was done. He might have turned the castle upside down and the girls would have aided and abetted him.

"I should like to be present when those boxes are moved," she said. "There are hundreds of rare and curious things that belonged to my mother—things that the British Museum would long to possess. Remember, my ancestors were rulers in Tibet for thousands of years. Some day I'll show you my curios. But don't begin to move those boxes till I am ready to assist."

"I shall not be ready for an hour, Marion."

"Very well, then, I shall be back in an hour, astronomer."

Geoffrey finished his work presently. Then he ran up to the turret-room and opened the door. The place was dusty and dirty to a degree, and filled with packing cases. Apparently they were all of foreign make—wooden boxes, with queer inscriptions, lacquered boxes, and one fragile wooden box clamped and decorated in filigree brass.

"A queer thing," Geoffrey murmured. "And old, very old, too."

"Over a thousand years. There is only one more like it in the world, and no Christian eyes save four have ever looked upon it. When you take that box from the room, see that it is the last, Geoffrey. You hear?"

It was Ralph who spoke. He had appeared silently and mysteriously as usual. He spoke calmly, but his twitching lips were eloquent of suppressed excitement.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. Of the latter thirteen fly the flags of belligerent countries, and many of these have, since the very beginning of hostilities, been going and coming across the Western Ocean with uninterrupted regularity.—Editorial from the New York Herald, Sunday, March 28, 1915.
